

A new kind of sperm donation: “Shipping + PR”

Thank you for reading this far. Sperm donation is one of the most rewarding things I have done in my life, knowing I’ve helped people have babies the way they’ve always dreamed of. I always want to improve, and my numbers are not good enough. I have a plan, and I need your help.

If you had gone to a cryobank, your sample would have been half an ejaculate from someone who had abstained for 48 hours before producing it. A particularly dedicated cryobank donor can only produce 3 cryobank sessions per week (Saturdays off).

With me, I have a dilemma. There’s so much demand that I need to ship every day of the week. Sometimes two per day. Even that’s not enough. But when I ship every day of the week, I run into a problem, which we’ll call “the goat problem”.

They’ve experimented on goats. They found that a male goat’s sperm will be normal the first time he mates with a female, but 24 hours later, if he mates with the same female, he produces far fewer sperm. However, if every 24 hours he mates with a different female, his sperm does not change much at all (even going up sometimes).

I think it’s reasonable to expect my brain works the same way as that male goat’s. However, my body doesn’t have the benefit of a different woman to be around as I produce (at least when I’m shipping). You’re very different than the woman yesterday or the woman tomorrow, but my environment doesn’t reflect that. So how do we avoid “the goat problem”, where I’m shipping you 10 million sperm instead of 60 million sperm?

First, I want to make something clear. As your donor, I have a goal to meet, and that’s to get you your baby, preferably in as few tries as possible. As my recipient, your goal should be the same, to get to baby in as few tries as possible. If there’s an option that gets you closer to that goal, without being really inconvenient or traumatizing, it shouldn’t even be a discussion, everybody should just do it.

I’m not asking for NI, I’m not asking for travel. What I’m asking for is your pheromones.

I believe the male goat senses the female goat is different by detecting a different scent, rather than using his visual or auditory system. I bet he doesn’t even need the female goat to be there if the scent part is simulated. Therefore, if you could share your scent with me, it would be different from the last person’s, and it would make me ejaculate more viable sperm.

When I ship you a package, I’ll now be including a prepaid mailer. I ask you to take your current or last night’s pair of panties, put them in the mailer, seal it, and drop it in the mail. Is that gross? Yes, but I’ve just laid out how it’ll help you get 60 million sperm instead of 10 million sperm. I’ll gladly be called gross or pervert if it helps your baby, or anybody’s baby.

Do you HAVE to do this to work with me? No. But I ask you to put aside the ick factor for the baby.